PUMP UP YOUR SAVINGS!

How Credit Unions MAKE KIDS STRONGER

Parents want their kids to be healthy, but that means more than eating right and exercising. More than ever, financial fitness is crucial to the future well-being of children.

Student debt is skyrocketing, and mobile technology makes shopping so easy it doesn't even feel like spending real money. Meanwhile, only 17 states require a high-school course in personal finance. That leaves a huge knowledge gap swallowing up a generation of young people.

This is why credit unions are so important. Credit unions are not-for-profit. And as financial cooperatives, educating members is one of our foundational principles. So we genuinely want to help people master their finances, not simply steer them into products that fatten our bottom line.

By opening a credit union youth savings account for your child, you're starting them on a path to real financial strength. We provide financial education and are always ready with encouragement and honest advice. And when your child is ready, we can ease them into trustworthy loan products that help them responsibly manage credit and boost their credit score.

We want all children to dream big, but to spend lean, to pump up their savings and strengthen their security.

That's what it means to be credit union strong.
